There are some very nice advantages for pik TV. The price is probably right at the top of that list. It is very reasonable for what you get. The menus are also quite easy to navigate and the curriculum menu automatically keeps the track of your shows you watch and lets you know when you have a new episode available. There is also a decent quantity of content. Now on evil. There are some very current shows, like the modern family, which has the first pair of episodes of the current season they are missing. Similarly, the entire first season of New Amsterdam is not available. Not many people like to start watching a show in the second season without seeing the first season. Also, you can't quickly make a lot of shows or skip intros. Once I saw the introduction into a show, I saw it. I'd like to be able to skip it. Finally, occasionally becomes buggy. Sometimes the image stops for a few seconds and then start playing really slow and very pixelated. If you put on your pause, go out from the menu and resume the show, which often solves the problem. Overall, it's a good service that is worth the money, but there is certainly space for improvement.
