1996 single by Donna Lewis "I Love You Always Forever"Single by Donna LewisDall' album Now in a MinuteReleased7 May 1996 (1996-05-07)GenrePopLength 3:59 (album version) 3:24 (radio edit) LabelAtlanticSongwriter(s)Woman LewisProducer(s)Woman LewisKevin KillenDonna Lewis singles chronology "I Love You Always Forever" (1996) "Fool's Paradise" (1996) Music video "I Love You Always Forever" on YouTube Written by Lewis and produced by Lewis and Kevin Killen, he was released as the album's lead single in the United States on 7 May 1996 and in the United Kingdom on 26 August 1996. The song is inspired by the novel Love for Lydia by H. E. Bates, from which he takes the chorus. [1] The song was a commercial success, reaching the top ten in more than 15 countries, including Australia, Austria, Canada, France, Ireland and Norway. In the United States, the song climbed to number two on the Billboard Hot 100, where it remained for nine weeks, having been blocked by number one by the "Macarena" of Los del Río. The single also reached number one on the Billboard Mainstream Top 40 chart for eleven weeks and the Billboard Adult Top 40 chart for eight weeks. It has been certified Platinum in Australia and Gold in France, Germany, New Zealand, Norway, United Kingdom and United States. The success of the song saw Lewis nominated for the Brit Award for Best British Female Artist in 1997. [2] In 2016, a cover version of Australian pop singer Betty Who reached sixth place in the ARIA Singles Chart and surpassed the US Billboard Dance Club Songs chart. [3] Background inspired by the novel Love for Lydia by English author H. E. Bates. "I Love You Always Forever" is a pop song in which the singer declares his infinite love for his significant other. The song was originally called "Lydia", but was later changed because there was no mention of anyone with that name in the song. The chorus, "I always love you forever, close and much closer together", is a quote taken directly from the book. [1] The composition "I always love you forever" is written in the key of C major in common time with a time of 104 beats per minute. [4] Lewis's voices range from F3 to G4 in the song. [5] The reception "I Love You Always Forever" was extremely popular with the public. As the best-selling of the United Kingdom, Lewis performed the live song on the BBC's Top of the Pops in the summer of 1996, and his success saw his nomination for the British Award for Best British Female Artist in 1997. [2] In the United States, Andrea Ganis, executive VP of Lewis's record label, Atlantic, said: "The radio stations around the country keep telling us the same thing more and more times," Ganis says. "They play it and, almost all night, it's their song morePerhaps it is because things have been so dark lately to pop and then, long, there comes a record that everyone can sing together. It's almost like a catharsi for a lot offt became a "escape success" without any further marketing boost from high-profile events such as a successful film or the 1996 Atlanta Olympic Games, and was the first single to reach over a million airplay surveys in the United States. [6] The AllMusic editor Tom Demaion called the song "compelling" in his review of Now in a Minute. She noticed that Lewis "has a female voice that looks like a less eccentric Kate Bush." [7] Larry Flick of Billboard described him as "a quietly percussive pop chugger". He complimented Lewis's voice as "a delicate and girlish voice that gives the song a winsome quality, which adds to its already remarkable charm." [8] Tracey Pepper from Entertainment Weekly noted that it is "more sophisticated than a first listening could reveal. "I Love You Always Forever" sings the chorus, the rhythm of chugging and the bright melody make it clear that the newcomer Donna Lewis, whose female voice often sounds like that of Cyndi Lauper, knows the value of the construction of tension and mood, even in a pop song." [9] Kim Renfro of Insider said that the song is a "true bop" that recalls Cyndi Lauper's ten-years music. [10] Eamon Joyce from Miscellany News commented that "on hearing the song, it is embedded in your head for weeks. " [11] Bob Waliszewski of Plugged In said that Lewis "spledges lifelong commitment" on the song. [12] In 2018, Stacker ranked him in number 10 on their list of "Best Pop Songs of the Last 25 Years", noting Lewis's "Ethereal Voice on a celestial background of synthesizers and battery beats substate". The music video of the song was directed by Randeel St. Nicholas. It is very simple, showing Lewis performing the song dressed in all white in a beige swivel room. Other scenes characterize it against a black background, with snow boots on his hands against a wall, and play a piano.
