a statement phrase is a sentence that makes a statement â€"in other words, declares something. This type of phrase is oato to share information - for example, stating your point of view or fact. of the four types of phrases (declaration, question, imperative, exclamation,) is by far the most common. I think of your communication in everyday life. most of our communication is to give information of other people. Let us tell people what we want, give them answers to questions, share ideas we have, tell people our opinions "] in short, we are making statements about the world as we see it. this type of communication is what the declarative phrases are for. do we communicate only to make statements? no, of course not â€"We also ask questions, have emotional explosions and say things with a lot of emotion behind them. this type of communication is made with questioning, imperative or exclaiming phrases. but most times, people simply communicate by affirming what is in their mind.2. examples of 1tototo example declaring phrases, I have a feeling that we are no longer in Kansas.Â"dorothy, in the wizard of ozdorothy speaks this statement to his dog after they arrive in oz. is informing toto what he believes. (if toto understands or not dorothy is questionable.) example 2elementary, my dear Watson.--Sherlock holmeshis example for the statement phrase was often oated by holmes to inform his assistant, watson, that the solution to a mystery was simple enough to discover. He's stating his point of view. Example 3i don't like to gamble, but if there's one thing I'm willing to bet, it's me too. -BeyoncÂ© in this sentence, BeyoncÂ© declares his self-confidence. is stating that he will take risks because he believes in his abilities.3. parts of a statement. the parts of a declaratory phrase are the same as those for any sentence: it must have a subject and a preached. subject is what the phrase is. is a name or a pronoun, and in a declaratory sentence comes at the beginning of the main clause.b. the preached preaching includes the verb plus any other information in the clause or phrase. examples (subject to red, preached in green) the dog is sleeping on the couch. astudying makes a test easier. AMPIBIANI can a little water and part on Land.C. punctuationso, which part of the statement phrase makes it different from other types of phrases? the final punctuation: a declaring sentence ends with a period. 4. how to write a statement sentinence, end in a period mentioned in Part 3, a declaration sentence ends with a period. If a sentence ends with another punctuation sign, you are looking at a different type of phrase.examplei am hungrythis simple sentence is a statement phrase. but look what happens if we change the brandFinal: I'm hungry! This simple phrase is no longer a declarative declarative sentence The exclamation mark makes it an exclamation phrase! An declarative phrase is simply a statement without a strong emotional component. On the other hand, the exclamation mark at the end of an exclamation phrase expresses that the speaker or writer has a strong feeling or emotion attached to it. So, declarative sentences cannot finish in exclamation signs! B. Share the information please do not give the chocolate dog. This is an imperative phrase and should not be confused with a declarative sentence. One of the functions of an imperative phrase is to make requests. So even if the example phrase ends over a period, he is making a request using the word â€œIn do itâ€"â€œ. It would be used, for example, by creating the rules for a new sitter dog. So this phrase is not only information sharing, and is not a declarative sentence. The subject comes before Verbexample, another point to note is that in a declarative phrase, the subject comes before the verb. This is different from a question sentence, where the verb comes often before the subject. Penelope is of a small city. This is another simple and declarative phrase. Penelope is a small city? Here, two things have changed: the final punctuation point is now a question mark, and the order of the subject (Penelope) and the verb (IS) has changed. Therefore, the second sentence is a question, not an declarative, phrase. So when you write a sentence, remember the correct word order. Overall, the declarative phrase is by far the most common type of phrase. You can read entire pages of text and not find other phrase type. When reading aloud, their tone is always relaxed and conversation. The declarative is used to make statements. A statement is usually the expression of a fact or opinion. The statements can be both positive and negative. Kate is not working. Tim wasn't reading your diary. Helen didn't talk about you. I don't go on vacation this year. The declarative sentences always contain a subject and a following verb sentence. The normal word order for declarative sentences: subject + verbal phrase Kate is working. Tim was reading. Helen stared at me in surprise. Subject + word verb + direct object Ross writes a letter. PAM has borrowed three libraries. Stephen ordered vegetarian lasagna. Subject + verb phrase + adverbialdominic he was eating very slowly. Lyndsey was studying in her room. Mikhail raged nervously. Subject + word verb + direct object + adverbialdominic was eating its lunch very slowly. Lyndsey was reading a book in her room. Some verbs must have below, for example to see, find, prefer, take. She saw her friend of her. You found a camera. They took a vacation brochure. Other verbs need, or may have, is a direct that indirect, for example give, buy, offer. Laura offered me another cookie. Scott's uncle bought him a new bike. The word order can be both: subject + verb + indirect indirectobjectkate gave the doga a bone. Stuart bought a birthday present.or, with the addition of a word that indicates the recipient: â€"â€"â€" subjectâ€" + verba + â€" direct objecta + a per / hole + â€" indirect object.Kate gave a bonea to the dog.Stuart boughtâ€"a birthday presents for Marie group. Another of verbs must be followed either by an object and adverbial expression, or an adverbial expression own ega inserts, place, stand.Richard placedâ€"the computer on the table. Diana puta her jeansâ€"in the drawer.Michael stoodâ€"in the middle of an additional type of pitch statement.A declarative has the same basic order of the subject and verb as subjectâ€" + verb + phraseâ€"a direct object, but with a complement replacing the direct object.Â"elizabeth seems to have beena rather inherentâ€"recently.
